For sailing enthusiasts, Grand Soleil Yachts will showcase the Grand Soleil 52 Performance, a flagship model of the brand's sporty range, while a dedicated area of the stand will be entirely reserved for the Plus Line. This family of models over 60 feet is designed for owners seeking yachts built around their specific needs, offering comfortable, safe cruising and the highest standards of quality.

“With our participation at boot Düsseldorf 2026, we aim to present a strong, consistent and innovative offering that reflects the Group’s development strategy”, said Marcello Veronesi, CEO of Cantiere del Pardo. “From the new Pardo 43, which continues to deliver great satisfaction, to the preview of the GT65, and the success of Grand Soleil’s Plus Line, 2026 will be a year of major new developments and confirmations for clients and enthusiasts around the world”.

The most awaited 2026 launches of Cantiere del Pardo

2026 will be a particularly exciting year for Cantiere del Pardo, with major debuts in both the motor and sailing segments. As far as Pardo Yachts is concerned, the most eagerly awaited model is the new Pardo GT65, the crossover that completes the GT range.

Designed to offer generous living spaces, flexible yet rational layouts, and a strong connection with the surrounding environment, the GT65 combines iconic elements such as the reverse bow with modern solutions like the raised galley on the lower deck and the continuous single-panel glazing of the deckhouse, which enhances visual continuity between interior and exterior. The model will make its debut at the Cannes Yachting Festival 2026.

On the sailing front, Grand Soleil Yachts will introduce three highly significant new models, starting with the Grand Soleil 60 Long Cruise, designed for bluewater cruising, with spaces and volumes optimized to ensure comfort, autonomy, and safe navigation even over long distances. However, the biggest and most eagerly anticipated novelty is undoubtedly the new flagship of the Plus Line, the Grand Soleil Plus 80, which will debut in both Long Cruise and Performance versions.
